Dreamwork's Francine Pudelpointer

Dad's Girls

It all started in May 2002 when my two daughters, Leila and Bailee, and I went to pick up our newest addition to our K-9 family, Dreamwork's Francine aka "Roxie." On our way home from picking up Roxie, my youngest daughter, Bailee (11 years old) asked if she could help with the training and possibly run her in Natural Ability. Of course I said yes! What dad wouldn't? In the following months my wife and daughters socialized Roxie by taking her to the store, bank, school - just about everywhere.

I showed Bailee how to develop Roxie's pointing skills and Bailee showed me how she had Roxie retrieving anything. She always had to have something in her mouth. Bailee and Roxie took to training like fish to water. Bailee learned how to plant birds and work the field with Roxie. As training progressed, Bailee had Roxie on the training table working whoa while the three of us continued to prepare for the upcoming Natural Ability test. Bailee was quite the busy girl, balancing school, homework and training.

Test day was here. As Bailee brought Roxie to the field for her instructions, Judge Jonathan Paranjothy guided the pair through the field. They worked the field like old pro's; searching, finding birds and pointing. Roxie's tracking of the pheasant looked like she was on a guide wire - never deviating from the track. Being half fish, the water portion was only more fun. Bailee and Roxie earned a Prize I, 108 points. This is one of those moments that brings a tear to a dad's eye and a memory to look back on that will put an ear-to-ear grin on his face. Proud? You bet. I'm happy my daughters have taken an interest in training and testing. On our way home, Bailee asked if I would help her and Roxie prepare for a Utility test. I'll let you know how that turns out.
